

Do Business in China with the 5 Most Innovative VoIP Providers of the Year, Announced by MyVoipProvider.com

October 13, 2013

San Jose, CA (PRWEB) October 13, 2013

The business climate in China is rapidly improving, and is ripe for the picking for investors and trade partners. It's said that one of the best ways to get into the Chinese market is to find a partner to stay in contact with, but international calling rates with traditional business phone systems make staying in contact overseas a very expensive prospect.

What if there was a way to bypass the phone lines to make much cheaper, or even free international phone calls? Thankfully, the "worldwide" web has a solution in the form of Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) phone technology. VoIP uses the Internet to place and make phone calls instead of phone lines, allowing for much less expensive calling rates. That makes doing business in Chinese, Indian, European, and even African markets as easy as dealing with a business on the other side of town.

Make cheap international calls by switching to a business VoIP provider today. The choices may seem overwhelming, but that's why the VoIP experts at <http://www.myvoipprovider.com> compiled this list to help businesses find the best international business VoIP providers possible. These providers are ranked based on their international calling features, price, customer service, and overall quality.

1. Jive

Jive allows their business clients to call China for as little as 3 cents a minute. This low rate is also extended to several other countries, including Hong Kong, Spain, France and Germany. Jive also offers excellent calling features as part of every single one of their plans, including automated attendants, call forwarding, caller ID and more.

2. VoIP.com

Want to get unlimited calls to China and over 70 other countries as well? VoIP.com offers an international calling rate that's almost too good to be true. Business dreams become reality with VoIP.com, because $24.95 a month pays for unlimited international calls to both mobile and landline numbers in China, Singapore, India, and more.

3. RingCentral

RingCentral offers a vast selection of countries to call for extremely low rates in addition to China. Call anywhere from Beijing to Shanghai for under 4 cents a minute, including mobile phones. RingCentral's list of available countries is larger than almost all other providers out there, and even offers cheap per-minute rates as far off as Antarctica.

4. 8x8

8x8 is already one of the best business VoIP providers in the country, because they offer unparalleled VoIP equipment options and hosted PBX rates. For an additional $14.99 a month, subscribers have access to an international virtual phone number. This allows the call to originate within Chinese borders, or any other country within their selection of over 50 choices.

5. Nextiva

Nextiva gives customers the best of the domestic and international calling experience with a worldwide calling network, but a US-based support team. Their friendly staff will always have clear and simple solutions for businesses that have issues with their international calling system. Their price also comes in at a completely reasonable rate of $19.99 per phone line.

VoIP technology makes doing business overseas both cheap and easy. Having a partnership in China will make profits soar through an international market, and the savings provided by business VoIP services will only add to this effect. VoIP services also usually include IP video conferencing services much more reliable than Skype, so switch today and start making face-to-face business agreements overseas without going anywhere near an airport.

Read the full story at <http://www.prweb.com/releases/china-business-VoIP/10/prweb11220008.htm>